Prologue

While flipping through the pages of a colorful magazine, the Dark Prince found himself unusually curious. An article had caught his attention: "Want to be popular with the girls this tanning season?" After perusing it several times, he had himself an epiphany!

"I need to make more effort, to really put myself out there!"

And a tan was evidently the way to go about this, though it really wasn't exactly what you might call tanning season at the time.

The magazine running the article was actually a guide to tropical vacations. Being the Dark Prince, it was more convenient for him to get a tan precisely where he was, and with a twisted laugh, a cunning plan was put into motion. In a lot of ways, a tropical tour would have been the easier option, but at the same time, the troubled Dark Prince of the underworld had his own priorities, so the plan seemed a reasonable compromise under the circumstances.

It never even occurred to the Dark Prince that anything could possibly go wrong. He just had absolutely no idea.

And when things like this go wrong, they go very very wrong.

You know that feeling you get when summer's on its way, and the sun seems somehow larger in the sky? Well in this case, it really was getting bigger, and stronger, as a beam of light appeared to almost pull it towards Earth. As it got hotter and hotter, a haze of heat shimmer made the landscape dance, the trees began to wilt, the sea began to dry up, and everyone went berserk with panic!

But among the chaos, one girl stood tall.

"Leave our world alone!" she yelled, a bold act of defiance. Why, she was none other than my hero and yours, Arles!!

In some other place, Schezo was trembling with anger. "Give me back my night!" he growled. He grabbed his sword and headed out.

Meanwhile, Draco was a little more nonchalant about the whole thing. "The weather sure seems nice. How about a spot of sunbathing!"

Thusly, despite each having their own reasons, they all headed towards the mysterious castle from which the light originated... which was perched upon a perfect hill for sunbathing!

Controls

The main game mode is exclusively for two players.

Connect P1's Control Pad to CONTROL 1, and P2's Control Pad to CONTROL 2. If only one Control Pad is connected to CONTROL 1, you can still play in Practice Mode (p.10).

* The direction of rotation for Button B can be changed in Options (p.12).

* Buttons X, Y and Z are not used.

Game Rules

Basic Rules

Connect four or more Puyo together and they will be removed. This is the most basic rule, and is thankfully very easy to remember!

Move the falling Puyo pair so that they touch other Puyo of the same color. The same color Puyo can be immediately left, right, above or below.

When four connect, they disappear! Pop! It's that simple!

Match Rules

When you remove Puyo, you also send Garbage Puyo to your opponent's field. Depending on the number you remove, or the number of Chains, you might send one Garbage Puyo, or you might send an army of them all at once! These transparent Puyo cannot be removed by conventional means (remember?), only by removing other Puyo immediately adjacent to them.

Remove Puyo, and Garbage Puyo will first appear in your opponent's Nuisance Queue (p.9).

Before long, these drop into the field as Garbage Puyo. They can be really annoying!

Offset Garbage Puyo

If you remove Puyo while Garbage Puyo lurk in your Nuisance Queue (p.9), the Garbage Puyo you generate cancel out the ones in the queue. This is known as Offsetting. Furthermore, when you Offset Puyo, a special Puyo called "Sun Puyo" will drop into both fields. Remove the Sun Puyo to send a larger than normal amount of Garbage Puyo to your opponent!! Clear a lot of Sun Puyo, and you'll make stronger attacks than even complex Chains, so those less adept at setting up Chains still have a chance to turn things around!! Sun Puyo also drop on All Clear, so make good use of it!

* In Style (p.11) choose "Fading Sun" to prevent the Sun Puyo from appearing.

Removal Techniques

With the basics well understood, we can now delve into some of the more complex techniques. These will earn you greater points, and increase your attack power!

Simultaneous Clear

Removing Puyo four at a time is fine, of course, but arranging it so you remove lots of Puyo at the same time will earn you bonus points! The same is true of removing two groups of different colors simultaneously. This technique makes attacks faster!

Remove loads of Puyo all at once

Remove two colors simultaneously

Chains

When Puyo are erased, the ones on top will drop down. When these then connect and disappear, it's called a Chain Reaction. The greater the number of Chains in sequence, the more Garbage Puyo are sent to your opponent.

These two drop and the first four Puyo vanish

Then the next...
3 Chain

Then the next...
2 Chain

Chain after Chain after Chain,
ALL these Garbage Puyo will drop!

Sun Puyo

Sun Puyo are removed in the same way as Garbage Puyo, and earn you just a little more attack power than usual. Now, try to erase them in a Chain. After 2 or 3 Chains, you can expect much greater attack potential. Include Sun Puyo in a big chain for a Garbage Puyo invasion!!

3 Chain without Sun Puyo

This many fall

3 Chain with Sun Puyo

Garbage Puyo invasion!!

All Clear

Remove every Puyo from your play field to receive a special bonus.

Nuisance Queue

When your opponent attacks, various Puyo will appear at the top of your side of the field. This is called the "Nuisance Queue." This indicates how many Garbage Puyo will drop.

	Small Puyo 1		Medium Puyo 6		Meteor Puyo 30		Star Puyo 180
--	-----------------	--	------------------	--	-------------------	--	------------------

	Moon Puyo 360		Comet Puyo 720		Saturn Puyo 1440

Versus

Start the game and press the START button at the title screen to display the main menu. If you want to change the match settings, go to “Options” (p.12) before selecting “Versus.”

In “Versus,” you can enjoy a match brimming with Puyo Puyo excitement! There are 18 characters to select from! There is no difference in ability between them, so choose any character you like. It is possible for both players to choose the same character.

When only one Control Pad is connected, you’re limited to one player Practice Mode. Even when both Control Pads are connected, either player can press and hold the D-Pad ↓ when choosing a character to take a break and let the other player practice.

Style

Before beginning the match, you can choose from 3 different styles.

Vanilla Sun

When you successfully Offset, a Sun Puyo drops into the field. This is the standard Puyo Puyo Sun style. Aim for a one-shot reversal!

Fusion Sun

When you successfully Offset, the Sun Puyo will fall fused with a color Puyo. Like Sun Puyo, fused color Puyo have increased attack power when erased.

This is a fused color Puyo.
Do you see the little Sun Puyo in the corner?!

Fading Sun

Sun Puyo appear, and then disappear shortly after. It’s almost like they’re not even there. Almost... This style is for players with so much confidence in their Puyo Puyo skills that they can afford to squander the advantages that Sun Puyo afford them!

Actually, Fading Sun Puyo do serve a purpose. Until they disappear, they delay regular Garbage Puyo from dropping! So there’s that...
